

David Berry

I am 66 years old and a retired Fire Officer where I headed up London Fire Brigade's Research and Development department where among my many projects drafted the user specification for Aerial Ladder Platforms now in use across the British Fire Service.

I have been involved with commercial vehicle preservation for 40 years starting with the restoration of Wiltshire Fire Brigades Dennis F12 and joining the Fire Service Preservation Group of which I became President for 8 years before becoming a founder member of The Leyland Society in early 1998.

As the owner of the ex Bristol Police Leyland Lioness Pump Escape (LTB1-HY 1801) I have been fortunate to have been a class winner for 3 years and runner up in the HCVS London to Brighton Concours de Elegance and attended several rally's across the country promoting the Society until it was decided to set up the Society sales stall.

I have held several positions in the Society taking over the role as Chairman on the sad death of Neil Steele in 2014.

Able supported by the "gang of 5" I look forward to supporting the Society for many more years.

I still have the Lioness and look forward to attending many new events in the coming years. If you see me out and about make yourself known as I would be pleased to make your acquaintance.
